THE PEOPLE'S SONG OF PEACE. THE grass is green on Bunker Hill; The water's sweet in Brandywine The sword sleeps in the scabbard still; The farmer keeps his flock and vine; Then who would mar the scene today With vaunt of battlefield or fray?

-Charles G. Halpine.

THE brave corn lifts in regiments Ten thousand sabers in the sun; The ricks replace the battle tents; The bannered tassels toss and run: The neighing steed, the bugle's blast, These be but stories of the past.

THE earth has healed her wounded breast; The cannons plow the fields no more; But heroes rest! Oh, let them rest In peace along the peaceful shore! They fought for peace, for peace they fell; They sleep in peace, and all is well.

THE fields forget the battles fought; The trenches wave in golden grain; Shall we neglect the lessons taught And tear the wounds agape again? Sweet mother nature, nurse the land And heal the wounds with gentle hand

Lo, peace on earth! Lo, flock and fold! Lo, rich abundance, fat increase and valleys clad in sheen of gold! Oh, rise and sing a song of peace! For Theseus roams the land no more, And Janus rests with rusted door -Joaquin Miller.

He Fought at Gettysburg.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: "Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have for me." THE autumn sun was dying, Glowed with its light the scene, The crimson sky and the sable

To its pomp her eyes were dim. His country's call had drawn his sword—

In the distant Asian passes The banner of England blew. Beneath its folds she saw him fight: Fighting, he saw her too.

The golden flood was darkened. A shadow before her came; Within the room the warrior stood, Outside the great red flame.

A cry broke on the stillness:
"Great God!" She reeled and fell.
And the sun dropped down, and the sky

With the gloom of a deathlike spell. In the distant Asian passes

A pale corpse faced the sky.

One life the less, one death the more— Strange spirit-tragedy! -Lord Curzon.

> EVENING RAIN. TWILIGHT down the west Wanders once again, With a gentler guest Singing in her train.

HARKENS every breast, Peace, oh, peace is best!" Runs the sweet refrain.

So the world is blest; Joy is not nor pain; Love itself learns rest Of the summer rain. -Unidentified.

"ALL DEALERS"

How the Old Man Spelled It.

"Look here, Charley," said one young collegian to another who had been asked to run his eye over a letter which his friend had written to his father in which there was the inevitable request for money, "you've spelled jug g-u-g!"

"I know," said Charley, "but, you see, I need the cash and don't want the old man to think I'm putting on airs. That's how he spells it."

A TRAGEDY

That's him thar on his coffin in the cart, An' that's his wife a-creepin' In the crowd, 'way off, an' weepin'. Oh, the law is jest a-breakin' of her

That's him thar on the scaffol'. See! He speaks. Thar's a woman thar a-holdin'

Of the hands they'll soon be foldin', An' the tears is jest a-rainin' down her

That's him thar in the coffin, lyin' low, An' the woman-first to love him An' the last to bend above him Is his mother-but I reckon you would know. -Frank L. Stanton.

An Irish clergyman wandering over the fields one quiet Sunday afternoon saw a young fellow well known to him by reputation, accompanied by a fierce looking bull terrier. He was evidently engaged in the reprehensible sport of "ratting." The clergyman, observing the ragged appearance of the man, thought to accomplish good in a roundabout way.

"George Cullen," said he, "I am afraid times are hard with you. Now, if you would mend your ways you could mend your clothes. That dog is probably worth something. Sell him, and you could buy a good pig, which, fattened, would be far more valuable." "An' wouldn't I look fine goin' rattin' wi' a pig."
